- Little Flea Falls in Love

She is small, very small: a flea. He is big, very big: a big dog. Little Flea jumps on the woolly fur of a big dog and falls in love with him. And the reader also can jump here and there with Little Flea chasing the big dog and meeting turtles and crickets, mushrooms and sunflowers.. A plastiline world for a small and great love story and with a lot of touch&feel elements to make the reading experience even more exciting!

Fulvia Degl'innocenti is a journalist who has been writing fiction for children and adolescents for years: fairy tales, short stories, illustrated books (some of which have been translated abroad in over 10 countries), and novels for young adults which have received several prestigious awards, including the 2011 Bancarellino Award.

Antonietta Manca is an Italian illustrator who works with plasticine and with objects and natural elements with amazing results. She has worked for various Italian publishers and for children's magazines on the pages dedicated to children. She carries out training courses for teachers and workshops for children.
